Scott Falcone

Clay Jeffcoat

Scott Falcone is the Director of the South Carolina School for the Deaf and the Blind – Division of Outreach Services. As the Division Director, he is responsible for oversight of statewide outreach programming that includes Educational Programs, Sign Language Interpreting Services, Inter-agency Deaf-Blind Project, Equipment Distribution Program and Early Intervention Services. All programmatic service provisions target the needs of infants, children and citizens with sensory disabilities, their families and the professionals who serve them. In addition, Scott is a Certified Public Manager and holds an Advanced Certification in Sign Language Interpreting along with experience in Educational Program Administration.

Scott is from Syracuse, New York, is a graduate of the State University of New York Institute of Technology, and has lifelong experience with deafness as a C.O.D.A. – Child of Deaf Adults. Prior to moving to South Carolina, Scott worked in deaf education for the public school system in Upstate New York.

Clay Jeffcoat serves as the Access Technology Coordinator in the South Carolina School for the Deaf and the Blind Vision Outreach Program. He provides consultation and direct instruction to students, teachers and professionals in the use of Access Technology statewide. Clay currently consults with the South Carolina School for the Deaf and the Blind Braille Production Center located at Leath Correctional Facility in Greenwood where he provides training and technical assistance with the sophisticated equipment used to produce Braille. He has taught Access Technology for Teachers of the Visually Impaired for the University of South Carolina Upstate. Clay also has participated in the Web Tester Pilot program through SCATP.

Clay is a graduate of USC with a BS in Computer Science and an MBA. He is a member of the Computer Science and Technology Division of the National Federation of the Blind of SC as well as a member of the Talking Book Services Advisory Council for the South Carolina State Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped. In his spare time, Clay enjoys antique radio restoration, amateur radio and spending time with his family.
